From Vermont and points north

- Get on Route 7 and drive south through Williamstown, Mass. Signs will guide you halfway around the town square and keep you on course. Get your camera ready; about 3 miles out of town you'll pass one of the most magnificent views in the Berkshires. That's Mount Greylock, the rooftop of southern New England; be sure to drive to the summit during your stay with us!
- Continue south on Route 7 into New Ashford. After you pass the Mill on the Floss restaurant on the left, you will see a "Mallery Road" sign on the right. Do not enter there. Drive farther down the road, you will see a long straightaway and an uphill stretch with a towering rocky cliff on the right (about 11 miles from the square in Williamstown). Slow down; the other end of Mallery Road is just past the cliff on the right. If you pass the Econolodge, you went a bit too far. Turn right onto Mallery Road, then right at the first driveway. You'll know you're here when you see a huge slab of rock inscribed with "Shirakaba" in Japanese.
